Descrição

geometry dash lets players guide a square-shaped character through a number of tough levels packed with jumps, obstacles, and traps. The background sounds and the game are very closely timed, so players have to be careful about when they move. Because it mixes rhythm with platforming, the game is hard and fun to play. A level editor in the game lets players make and share their own levels, which makes it more fun to play again and again and gets more people involved in the community. There are many game modes and changes that can be made to keep the experience interesting.

It's known for being both very fun and very hard, especially for people who want to get high points and finish user-made levels. Its designs are simple, but its levels are very complicated.
